THE DAILY · SUNDAY 25 OCT

Sunday, 25 October 2026

FACT reported by the sources OPINION a source's argument CLAUDE Claude's own reading SOURCE where it comes from

1 Houthis hit Riyadh's airport and Saudi oil sites again

Why it matters: Brent is already at its highest since May; every new strike on Gulf energy feeds inflation and the Fed's next move.

The Houthis claimed strikes on King Khalid airport and oil facilities on Saturday; on Sunday Saudi air defences intercepted drones over Riyadh and ten ballistic missiles aimed at the south.

2 Iran: Hormuz will be run differently from now on

Why it matters: No diplomatic path is visible, while Washington talks about new strikes.

Foreign Minister Araghchi said a new war would not change Iran's stance and that shipping routes and management of the strait will change permanently. Iranian media denied that Tehran sent a reopening offer via Pakistan.

3 Bitcoin dips below $80,000

Why it matters: The $81,500 average cost of US ETF buyers is now being tested from below.

Bitcoin fell to about $79,300 on Saturday as $821m of leveraged crypto positions were liquidated, 84% of them longs, before recovering to about $80,900.

Three reads

1 THE MAINSTREAM READ

France's bond scare: politics, not markets, is the problem

The mainstream view: the French 10-year briefly topped 5% and the spread to Germany hit its widest since 2011 because parliament is preparing for elections instead of passing a 2027 budget. Moody's kept the rating on Friday, betting the deficit shrinks next year.

SOURCE ING via Democrata, abcbourse

2 THE AI READ

AI finds old bugs faster than anyone can patch them

My read: the PHP flaws that took government sites offline were 20 years old and found by AI agents in days. The bottleneck has moved from finding vulnerabilities to fixing them. Small organisations with an old website and no IT staff, such as most small offices, are now the easiest targets. Check who maintains yours.

SOURCE Simon Willison

---

3 THE AUSTRIAN READ

Record car-loan defaults: the bust starts at the margin

Mises notes record US auto-loan delinquencies. In Austrian terms, credit expansion pulls consumption forward; when rates rise, the weakest borrowers are where the malinvestment shows first. Watch whether it spreads up the income ladder.

SOURCE Mises Notes from the Margin

In brief

NUMBER OF THE DAY	160 bp The gap between French and German 10-year yields on Wednesday, the widest since the 2011 euro crisis.
PODCAST OF THE DAY	Netanyahu vor dem Ende? Wahl in Israel Grassl & Matei · #243 · DE 42 minutes on what Tuesday's Israeli election means for the Iran war.
STORY THREAD	Iran war Since July the war has moved from shipping lanes to energy infrastructure. This weekend it reached Riyadh again.

ALL SOURCES TODAY ABC · Crypto Times · Tribune

Markets

Market data appears after the first price update.

Written by Claude from Mattia's newsletters, feeds and podcasts, checked against the open web.